What To Wear And When And Where To Wear It

The "Kiltie" Brogan

New York, April 28.—Since King Somewhere-Or-Other of Scotland first swung his sublimely upon black leather and executed a stroke which reached around the world, golf has always preserved the lure and look and lingo of its Scottish pedigree. From village cobbler to laird, Scotchmen imbibed a love of the game with the milk in their nursing bottles.

Golf and its ancestry are undivorceable. Golf is Scotland and Scotland is Golf, and even though there were not a thousand other reasons why the Land of the Lochs is imperially inscribed upon history, the Only and Olden Game would make its fame deathless and the world its debtor.

The "kiltie" golf brogan was first worn upon the St. Andrews Links in Fifehire and the Westward Ho Links in Devonshire. Its characteristic feature, as pictured here, is the slashed leather tongue, which drapes over the instep somewhat with the fling and flourish of a Tartan kilt.

This style is conspicuously a golf and field shoe, and it has no other place or purpose, though it is often worn where it shouldn't be. The circular brogueing of this shoe, the winged tip, the flat heel and the leather thong which serve as laces all help to give the Scotch look.

The Sport Slip-Over

The better your style, the better your stroke. It is an inviolable hand patting you upon the back. Smart and seemingly sporting clothes have a stimulating influence upon both one's spirit and one's score. Most men overdress for outdoors, swathing themselves in a thick jacket, woolen sweater and heavy flannels, whereas the exercise alone is enough to induce sufficient warmth.

Thin wool slip-overs, of the sort portrayed here, are coming into wider favor. They take the place of a field jacket and are far trimmer and lighter.

Such a slip-over may be of brushed wool, Scotch Alpaca or cashmere wool, with an oval neck opening and no sleeves. Some of these garments have contrasting braid edging. The armholes (sleeves) are cut away for added ease and the garment is slightly flared to the figure.

With a turn-out of this sort one wears the soft flannel and a plaid colored or blue-striped or diagonally striped foot-bag. The slipover may be hunter or loval green, white, maroon, seal, navy, brown, gray, butler, intermixed and like hand-pick by fits.

Fresh From Paris
Latest From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

THE latest mode evolves itself sometimes into the merest fringes that may edify a cape, finish a collar or fall from a quaint little apron at the front of the skirt. A gown of reseda green crepe de chine, for evening, diverts most of one's attention to the side of the skirt and holds it there with folds of material and flowers made of wondrous beads, pearls and magenta and silver. The corsage of this frock, like one wide shoulder strap and one narrow one, the latter supporting the deep fringed cape.

POWDER blue perlina is used by Amelle for an afternoon frock that derives a Spanish air from its fringes trimming. It is cleverness, but the fringe collar falls over the upper arm nearly to the elbow. An apron, which is the tunic in one of its new and attractive forms, is also deeply fringed.

TWO ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF BRUNEN

Canden, N. J., April 28.—Two men are under arrest today charged with the murder of "Honest John" Brunen, wealthy circus owner, who was slain with a shotgun at his home in Riverside on the night of March 18.

They are Harry Mohr of Camden, Brunen's brother-in-law and Charles M. Powell of Indianapolis.

Powell was arrested two weeks ago by County Detective Villa Parker and was held secretly in the Mount Holly jail until today when he made a confession which resulted in the arrest of Mohr, according to police.

Detective Parker said today the circus has been showing in Philadelphia this week under Mohr's management.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By ALFRED STEPHEN BRYAN

What To Wear And When And Where To Wear It

New York, April 28.—"Kiltie King Somersby" or other of Scotland first swung his kiltie upon his back and executed a stroke which reached around the world, golf has heard and the kiltie and loom of its Scottish pedigree, from village cobbler to kiltie, Scotchmen imitate a love of the game with the kiltie in their kiltie.

Golf and its ancestry are indivisible. Golf is Scotland and Scotland is Golf, and even though there were not a thousand other reasons why the Land of the kiltie is imperishably inscribed upon history, the Only and O'Brien Game would make its fame deathless and the world its debtor.

The "kiltie" golf brogan was first worn upon the St. Andrews Links in Fifeshire and the Westward is the kiltie in Devonshire. Its characteristic feature, as pictured here, is the slashed leather tongue which drapes over the instep somewhat with the fling and flourish of a Tartan kiltie.

This style is confessedly a golf and field shoe, and it has no other place or purpose, though it is often worn where it should be. The circular brogue of this shoe, the whistled tip, the flat heel and the leather thong which serve as laces all help to stress the Scotch look.

The Sport Slip-Over

The better your style, the better your stroke. It is an inviolable band putting you upon the back. Smart and seemingly sporting clothes have a stimulating influence upon both one's spirit and one's score. Most men overdress for outdoors, swathing themselves in a thick jacket, woolen sweater and heavy flannels, whereas the exercise alone is enough to induce sufficient warmth.

Thin wool slip-overs, of the sort portrayed here, are coming into wider favor. They take the place of a flannel jacket and are far trimmer and lighter.

Such a slip-over may be of brushed, wool, Scotch Alpaca or cashmere wool, with an oval neck opening and no sleeves. Some of these garments have contrasting broad stripes. The armholes (except) are cut away for added ease and the garment is slightly flared to the hem.

With a turnout of this sort one wears the soft kiltie and a plain-colored or blue-striped or diagonally striped shirt. The slip-over may be knitted or woven, white, maroon, navy, gray, brown, gray, leather, textured and live landscape tints.

NOTE: Questions concerning the kiltie for men will be answered by Alfred Stephen Bryan, if addressed to him in care of this newspaper. To insure a reply, a stamped envelope must be inclosed.

DREAMS OF PEACE 4 HELD IN THEFT AND IS ROBBED FROM EXPRESS

Angelo Zarzomora, of No. 109 N. 2nd street, Lynn, awake from "dreams of peace" early today to look into the business end of a revolver and confront a masked man.

"I'll take what you've got under the pillow," said the intruder, and Angelo, without argument, handed over his week's pay.

When the householder departed Zarzomora, drenched trousers, over his elbow, put on shoes without stockings, and broke all records in the police station. He said he thought the robber was a false friend of his, who had been in his house recently.

Fresh From Paris Latest From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France. THE shawl mode evolves itself sometimes into the merest fringe that may edge a cape, finish a collar or fall from a quiet little apron at the front of the skirt. A row of reseda green crepe de chine, for evening, diverts most of one's attention to the side of the skirt and holds it there with folds of material and flowers made of wooden beads painted magenta and silver. The corsage of this frock has one wide shoulder strap and one narrow one, the latter supporting the deep fringed cape.

POWDER blue perline is used by Amalia for an afternoon frock that derives a Spanish air from its fringe trimmings. It is sleeveless, but the fringe collar falls over the upper arm heavily to the elbow. An apron, which is the tonic to the dress, is also deeply fringed.

STATE AND CITY PROBE LYNN FIRE—HUB STAGE IN PICTURES

CITY AND STATE AUTHORITIES UNITE TO PROBE SWIFT SPREAD OF LYNN FIRE! This remarkable photograph made by a Boston American cameraman at the height of the devastating fire, shows the flames and smoke mounting hundreds of feet into the air, driven by high shifting winds. Starting from an overturned bucket of hot tar, the fire swept on until it had destroyed three factories, eight tenement houses and burned down the famous old Libbey's Hotel. The picture graphically shows how the speeding flames attacked and toppled over one of the factories. The fire started in the building at 795-811 Washington street.

HAIL, HAIL, ETC.! All Worcester turned out to celebrate the fourth anniversary of Armistice Day and applaud veterans of the 104th U. S. Infantry and other heroes of the war. Above left to right, are Mayor Sullivan, Gov. Cox and Maj.-Gen. Edwards reviewing the paraders.

HOMEBOODIES! Among Greater Boston folk arriving on the Concord Samaria who were glad to be home, were Mrs. A. T. Stuart of Newton, top, and Miss A. J. Loneragan of Cambridge. Both toured Europe.

FINALE HOPPERS Should Be Compelled to See "The Last Waltz!" Miss Eleanor Painter's lilting voice is one of the pleasing memories of the musical piece, now current at the Wilbur Theatre.

LILLA FRANCIS VILES, talented dancer. In Mrs. Butler's May Festival on May 6 at Mechanics Building. Matinee and evening performances will be given.

TOE-TALLY CLEVER! Another charming pose of Marilyn Miller, whose presence means so much to "Sally," the tumbler comedy at the Colonial Theatre.

DIG UP THE GOLD and Go See "The Gold Diggers!" It's a good investment. Here is charming Marguerite St. Clair, who helps to make the unusual play at the Tremont so interesting.

PIPE THIS! Little Catharine Anderson is a pipe sergeant and one of the youngest players in the country. She is a member of the Walter Scott Juvenile Bagpipe Band, composed largely of very young Boston children of Scottish parentage. She was a feature at the band's annual recital in Parker Memorial Hall.

A LIL BIT PLAYFUL AT TIMES! Wilkenson's Albrecht of No. 32 Centre st., Brookline, who plays an important role in the Farrisish Players production of "Pomander Walk" to be given in Whittier Hall May 2 for the benefit of All Saints' Church of Brookline.

TODAY'S Knickerbocker Girl! Miss Winifred Wilton of No. 186 Pleasant st., Brockton, is awarded a prize of $5. Check will be mailed to her. Address photos to Pictorial Editor.

FAIR HARVARD or Harvard Fare Well! Miss Katharine Birge of New York City who will shortly become the bride of Roscoe McKinney of Harvard. (Kerstone)

MISS MARION DOUGLAS, entertainer and a member of the committee in charge of the informal dance, held under the auspices of the Mercantile Association at Whittier Hall, Codman square, Dorchester.

EXPECTS the Second Hundred to Be Easier Going! Aaron Davis, grand old man of Biddeford, Me., is determined to raise a crop that will make the young chaps envious. Hard work is his secret of old age. He is a veteran of the Civil War.

PLANNING AHEAD

trouble with most plans is that they are day-dreams. Without the help of a doctor, the conditions we get into a happy reward and punish ourselves to get out of. We are not able to work out. But our keen observations of the world around us, to face and recognize obstacles. Our calculations are not logical, but they are true.

In pointing ahead, it is always best to consider all the possibilities. Human affairs are complicated by the fact that we are not a part of our living we touch on the faces of some one else's life. Our solution is limited to a physical and a spiritual answer. We cannot avoid certain conditions to others. We cannot escape certain dangers upon which we live.

Life is too complicated for any of us to put it all into the consumption of our desires and the satisfaction of our illusions and desires to create.
